John: Dude, I didn't want to wake up this morning, but my alarm was screaming at me.

Mike: I know--me neither. I hit the snooze button at least three times this morning. My phone had to beg me to get up.

John: Dude, my problem is that I can't stop playing Playstation. If I do stop, the console just stares at me. I just can't resist.

Mike: For me, I couldn't stop reading Jack London's book "The Call of the Wild." The words were jumping off the page. I couldn't put the book down. Anyways, so what are we going to do today?

John: I don't know, but my brain is not cooperating with me today. I feel lethargic.

Mike: Yeah, me too. And I can smell the pancakes calling us to come and eat.

John: Awesome! Your mom made breakfast again.

Mike: Yup, and I can hear the coffee maker wishing us good morning.

John: Dude, the hairs on my arms are standing. I am so excited. Let's go feast.

Mike: Ok happy feet--wait for me.
