Write TWO Introduction Paragraphs

When we write, our best ideas often come slowly. We don't always get things right the first time. This is why it is beneficial to take "multiple shots" at a writing task.

For the following activity, you need to write TWO different introduction paragraphs for your essay. The goal is to take "multiple shots" at the same task.

When you are finished, be ready share your introduction paragraphs with classmates. They will vote on the paragraph they like the most.

Introduction Paragraph #1:

The "norms" of our world tend to differ depending on where you are. In some areas, certain ways of doing things tend to be acceptable while in others is considered entirely inappropriate or even illegal. For example, slurping noodles in one area is ill-mannered but in another is encouraged to show you like your food. Different norms for different countries included different CULTURES for each region. How does it tie to romance - We'll figure that out together.

Introduction Paragraph #2:

As a child, we are exposed to the world and society's regulations of who to be, how to act, what to wear, how to treat others, who to love - all differing between different regions of the world. Some marry for love, some marry for honor, some religion, or some for family - all can be affected to the way we as humans were raised. Different backgrounds from different cultures that influence our day to day decisions consciously/subconsciously - even one's made in love. Cultures can influence our love life or the way we treat the concept of "romance" due to standards of society, religion, or cultural values/beliefs.
