Once upon a time, in a small coastal town named Foggy Bay, there lived a young boy named George. George had always dreamed of becoming a sailor, exploring the vast oceans and discovering hidden treasures. His fascination with the sea was unmatched, fueled by the stories told by old sailors at the local tavern.

One sunny morning, as George was mending his fishing nets by the harbor, he overheard a group of sailors discussing an upcoming voyage aboard the legendary ship, the Titan.

Excitement bubbled within him as he listened intently to their tales of adventure and the promise of riches beyond imagination.

Determined to fulfill his dream, George approached the captain of the Titan, a weathered seafarer named Captain Mudd. With unwavering determination, George pleaded with the captain to allow him to join the crew.

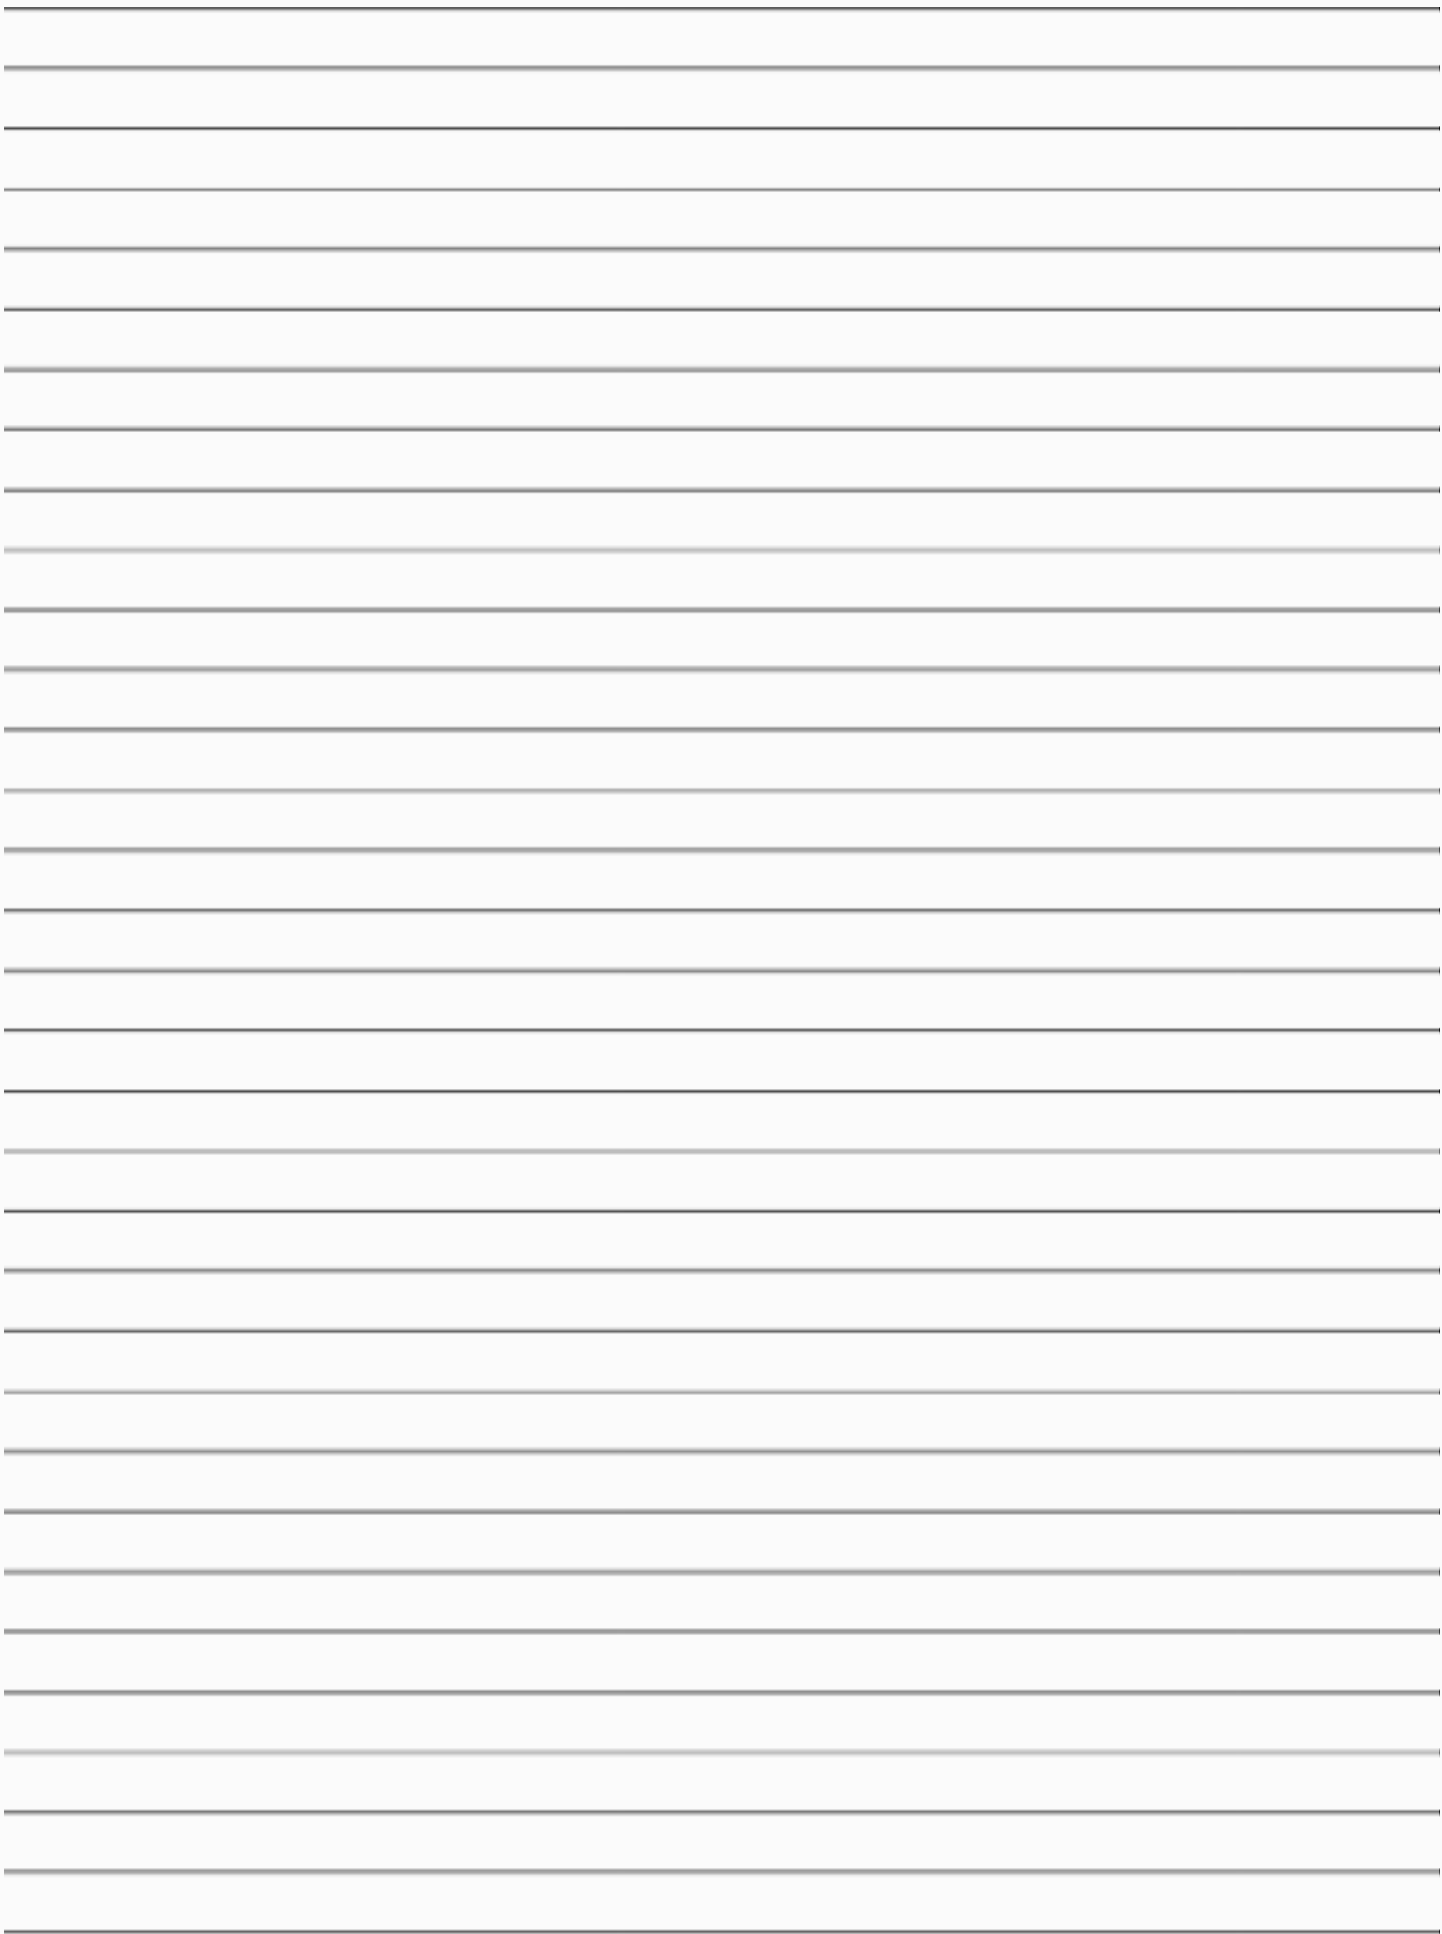

Captain Mudd eyed the young boy skeptically. "A lad like you? What could you possibly offer on a voyage as perilous as this?"

But George was undeterred. With a fire burning in his eyes, he spoke of his love for the sea and his eagerness to learn. Impressed by George's determination, Captain Mudd reluctantly agreed to take him on board as a cabin boy.
