Once upon a time, in the bustling town of Middleville, there lived a middle school student named Max. Max was known for his adventurous spirit and his love for solving mysteries. He had a collection of detective novels and a magnifying glass that he always carried in his backpack. One sunny morning, as Max was getting ready for school, he encountered a baffling problem. His left shoe was missing! He looked under his bed, in his closet, and even inside the refrigerator (just in case), but the shoe was nowhere to be found.

Max scratched his head, puzzled by the shoe's mysterious disappearance. "This is no ordinary case," he thought to himself. "This calls for some serious detective work!"
