Word Hunter

When we first read a text, it's common to encounter words we don't understand. This is normal. However, if you don't develop the habit of predicting word meanings or looking them up in a dictionary, your vocabulary will become stunted.

That's why it's essential to become a 'word hunter.' Instead of passively reading and skipping words you don't understand, you need to engage as an active reader by hunting for words. A word hunter predicts word meanings, then looks them up in the dictionary to confirm their actual definitions.

Your mission as a 'word hunter' is to choose three unfamiliar words from your reading. First, predict the meaning of each word, then look up their definitions in the dictionary.
