Write a Story About a Tornado

Your mission is to write a creative story about a tornado. Here are some tips you can follow.

Choose Your Setting:

Decide where the tornado happens—like a small town, farm, or school. Describe what the place looks and feels like before the tornado arrives.

Create Your Characters:

Think about who is in your story. Are they a family, friends, or classmates? How do they react when they realize a tornado is coming?

Build Suspense:

Write about the warning signs: dark clouds, strong winds, or sirens. Make readers feel the tension as the tornado gets closer.

Describe the Tornado:

Use exciting details! Describe the noise, the wind, and things flying around. Show how your characters try to stay safe.

Show the Aftermath:

Write about what it looks like after the tornado passes. Are buildings damaged? Are the characters safe? How do they feel afterward?

A series of horizontal lines for writing, consisting of 28 evenly spaced lines across the page.
