The Substitute Teacher

Your mission is to finish writing the following story. Be sure your story is creative and well-written.

The substitute walked in 5 minutes late. He didn't introduce himself. He didn't write his name on the board. He just stood there, scanning the room like he was taking attendance in his head.

Then he said, "Before we begin, I want to make something clear. I already know all of you."

A few students chuckled.

The substitute smiled—but not in a friendly way. He started calling on students without looking at the roster. He mentioned things no teacher should know: private fears, unfinished thoughts, moments that happened when no one else was watching.

The room grew quiet. Finally, his eyes landed on you. He leaned forward slightly and asked a question that only you could answer.

Your mission is to finish writing the following story.

Who is this substitute teacher?

- How does he know so many secretive things?
- Is he a mind reader?
- Is this all a prank?
- Is he an alien from Neptune?

What you write is your choice. Just make sure your story is creative and well-written.
