Guess the Writer

Write a short personal mini-essay (about 250 words) about something you genuinely enjoy or care about—Minecraft, skateboarding, fashion, lifting, K-pop, chess, cooking, cars, music, art, gaming, collecting, etc.

Your goal is to reveal who you are without revealing who you are. Let your voice, values, habits, and way of thinking shine through—while keeping your identity hidden.

Rules

- Do NOT include your name, nicknames, usernames, gamer tags, teams, or handles
- Do NOT reference specific people, places, schools, or events that would instantly identify you
- Do NOT include personal stories that only someone who knows you well would recognize

What You Should Do

- Show your personality through tone, word choice, and perspective
- Explain why this interest matters to you, not just what it is
- Describe how it makes you think, feel, focus, relax, or grow
- Use vivid language, comparisons, or metaphors to bring your passion to life

What Happens Next

The teacher will read the essays aloud—without names.

The class will try to guess the writer based only on the writing.
