

Name:

Date:

Section:

Score:

briantolentino.com

The Legibility Challenge

Writing neatly doesn't make you a strong writer. Many intelligent people have messy handwriting—just look at doctors. However, if you want your ideas to be understood, your writing needs to be readable. If people struggle to read your words, they may miss your ideas. The goal is simple: write in a way that feels natural to you while also making it easy for others to read.

Your Task: You will write the same paragraph twice.

First Attempt: Write the paragraph the way you normally would. Don't overthink it—just write

The Paragraph

Clarity in writing is not just about having strong ideas, but about presenting those ideas in a way that others can easily understand. When handwriting is rushed or difficult to read, even the best thoughts can lose their impact. Taking a little extra time to form letters carefully, space words evenly, and stay consistent can make a big difference in how your message is received.

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

Second attempt: Rewrite the same paragraph as neatly and clearly as possible. Slow down, focus, and challenge yourself to improve your handwriting.

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

